

INN^{OR}OUT

The Household Cavalry Museum is ideally located in the heart of Whitehall in one of England's most historic and iconic Grade I listed buildings. Launched as a venue in 2009, the museum is one of London's most exclusive and memorable places to hold an event

Household Cavalry Museum—SW1

Museum

The museum is set within central London's most striking and idyllic location. As guests arrive, they are immediately met by the elegance and beauty of St James's Park on one side and the grandeur and history of Horse Guards Parade Ground on the other. Used primarily for Royal ceremonial occasions, the Parade Ground is surrounded by the facades of The Admiralty, Headquarters of The Household Cavalry and Downing Street, with the iconic London Eye in the background.

Marquee and Outdoor Events

You will stride across Henry VIII's old jousting ground towards the magnificent 1750s William Kent building. Steeped in history, the museum is housed within the original structure and you can still see evidence of the first stable features and fittings. The stables were originally used to house up to 80 of the Cavalry's horses and today have up to 15 working horses and men on rotation for guard duty.
